

ABSTRACT

A combination tool with a driving implement and a pick-up implement comprises a tool handle from which extend a driving implement in one direction and a telescopic pick-up implement in the opposite direction. The two implements are constructed and function totally independently from each other. Also described are several devices
5 facilitating the deployment of the pick-up implement out of the tool handle.